

Adviser Advice—the best new idea we heard this month—Photo Fridays.

We do “Photo Fridays” and our school has become accustomed to them. I send out an e-mail (see below) to all teachers, to give them a heads-up about this and explain what “Photo Fridays” are.

Dear Staff,

Tomorrow begins the first of many “Photo Fridays.” During first period, the yearbook staff will be visiting your rooms, politely asking permission to take feature photos of students working, and asking to briefly interview and photograph identified students in the hallway. If you have a quiz, test, or lesson planned for which this would be a distraction, kindly e-mail me and I’ll cross you off the list for room visits tomorrow. If we can’t catch you this week, stay tuned for the next “Photo Friday.”

I greatly appreciate your flexibility in allowing the yearbook staff to visit your rooms as this will go a long ways towards enabling us to fully represent ALL students in our yearbook.
